

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

I. JOHN WEBSTER. One of the first settlers of Hartford, Conn., and fifth Governor of that Commonwealth; a native of Warwickshire, Eng. (The eminent lexicographer, Noah Webster, was a direct descendant of his.) Died Ap. 5, 1661.

II. His daughter Mary married—Hunt.

III. Her daughter Mary Hunt, about 1667 married John Ingersoll of Hartford, who removed to Northampton, Mass., about 1665 (?).

IV. Jonathan, their son, was born in Westfield, Mass., May 10, 1681, and lived in Milford, where he died Nov. 28, 1760, aged 79. His wife Sarah died Feb. 14, 1748, aged 61.

V. REV. JONATHAN INGERSOLL, their son, was born at Milford in 1713, and graduated at Yale College in 1736. (Teller's History of Ridgefield names Mr. Ingersoll a native of Stratford, which may be correct.) Mr. Ingersoll married Dorcas Moss, Nov. 10, 1740. She was born in Derby in 1726. My mother often quoted her with the utmost affection and reverence for her fervent piety, and no doubt her example and character stamped itself upon her three oldest granddaughters, Aunt Hawley, my mother, and Aunt Fanny Neill, and her prayers have been answered in the character of some of her descendants of past and the present generations. Mr. Ingersoll was installed as Pastor of the Congregational Church of Ridgefield on Nov. 8, 1738, and served it for nearly forty years and until his death. His home was on the lot since owned by Howard King, next to Grandpa King's. The house was built in 1801; later it burned down but was replaced by Howard. I believe that Uncle Joshua was born in the house in which he died. Before it was built Grandpa lived in a house directly opposite, which was later removed, the site being part of the meadows extending eastward to the horizon and including part of the Estate. The four eldest daughters were married in the house that was burned, and in it died Aunt Mary, Uncle John and Uncle Charles.

Rev. Mr. Ingersoll served as Chaplain of a Connecticut regiment in the Campaign of 1759 against the French in Canada, which ended in the capture of Quebec and the loss of Canada by France. He died Oct. 2, 1778, aged 64 years. In the Titicus Cemetery the headstone of his grave bears the following:

In Memory

of the Revd.

JONATHAN INGERSOLL, Pastor
Of Ye 1st Church in Ridgefield,
Who Deceased Oct. 2, A.D.,
1778 in Ye 65 Year of Tis Age
& 40th of His Ministry.

JARED, brother of the first named Jonathan, was appointed the Royal Distributor of Stamps in Hartford before the Revolutionary War, which odious office he was compelled by the people to resign. He was, I suppose, an Episcopalian and was appointed by the King on that account. Episcopacy in Connecticut originated in the conversion of a professor in Yale College. The new clergy were from the Church of England. This aroused the antagonism of the Congregationalists. Naturally, the Church of England people sided with the King.

Rev. Jonathan Ingersoll had ten children, the descendants of only two of whom now retain any connection, although all the women but one married in the adjoining towns; these two are the Ingersolls of New Haven and the Kings.

From the first named Jonathan the branch of the family in Philadelphia was descended.

A letter written by Rev. Jonathan Ingersoll, while in the Army, appears in the appendix of Peter Parley's "Recollections of a Life Time." The author of that book was a son of Rev. Mr.

Goodrich, the successor of Mr. Ingersoll in the pastorate of the Church in Ridgefield.

Anne, Mr. Ingersoll's youngest daughter, married Grandpa King, of whom more anon. Of her three brothers, two were deaf and dumb, of whom the elder JOSEPH, died, July 16, 1819, before my recollection, which, in so far as it concerns Ridgefield, goes back only to 1822; the other I knew very well, as I spent the winter of 1825-26 in Ridgefield, greatly to my delight. His name was Moss, from our earliest emigrant ancestors, whom my further record mentions.

Moss Ingersoll was a very lively, cheery man and social favorite. He was a little given to the bottle, which was, to some extent, excused by the custom of the times, and very amusing to the neighbors in his conversations in the sign language; his dumb brother was reserved and taciturn and rather inclined to be melancholic, doubtless from his infirmity. Both remained unmarried. Moss, in later life, removed to Auburn, N. Y., where he died.

The third brother of my grandmother King was Judge Ingersoll, of New Haven, a lawyer of high standing, Chief Justice of Connecticut, and Lieutenant Governor of that State. His son, Charles A. Ingersoll, was a U. S. District Judge, and his grandson, Charles R., who died very lately, also a Judge. I saw in a New Haven paper very laudatory resolutions on his death, passed by the Bar of New Haven.

This reminds me that I have a detailed notice from a New York City paper of the decease of Col, George P.

Webster, of that city, who, at the opening of our Civil War, was a Member of the Legislature of Kentucky. When a Resolution that the State should secede from the Union was offered in that body his name stood last on the roll. The vote was a tie when his name was called and he cast the decisive vote in the negative and kept Kentucky in the Union.

Cousin Polly Raymond, a niece of our Grandma King, was adopted by her when a child and continued in the family as housekeeper for the old couple while they lived and for Uncle Joshua, until her death, March 22, 1847. The Neills also became members of Uncle Joshua's family when he began his residence there in 1838.

- I. 1619. JOHN MOSS, born in England.
  - 1639. Emigrated and settled in New Haven, Conn.
  - 1670. Removed to Wallingford, Conn.
  - 1708. Died, aged 89.
- II. 1651. JOSEPH, his son, born in New Haven, where he lived till his decease, after holding various offices in that city.

III. REV. JOSEPH MOSS, M. A., his son, born April 7, 1679. His mother was Mary, who was married April 11, 1667. He received from Yale College the honorary degree of M. A., with the first class which graduated in 1702 from that institution. After teaching a classical school at Derby, he became Pastor of the Congregational Church in that town, and served it for twenty years. He died, Jan. 23, 1732, aged 52 years. No clergyman of his time enjoyed a higher reputation. He published several books.

IV. DORCAS MOSS, his daughter, was born (see page 18) in Derby, A. D., 1726; married to Rev. Jonathan Ingersoll, as already recorded; died in Ridgefield, Sept. 29, 1811.

The more immediate progenitor of our family, Gen. Joshua King, as he was best known in Ridgefield for many years, was born at Braintree, Mass., now Quincy, Nov. 24, 1758. His father was one of three brothers who came from England, but from what town I never learned. He settled in the places already mentioned. When the American Army surrounded Boston, our ancestor, a boy of sixteen, left home at his own independent option to join it. As his age best suited and his capacity qualified, he was appointed fifer. How long he so officiated is unknown, but in due time he found himself in the ranks for more direct soldierly service and was placed in the cavalry and gradually promoted. He became Lieutenant King, and had the special distinction of acting as escort to the unfortunate André from his capture to his execution. No opening for further promotion occurred for our grandfather, as the scene of active operations had changed to the distant south, where our Army was gradually drawing the British force to its final trip in Yorktown, and Washington was quietly waiting to make his masterly movement of hastening his troops by forced marches to the south and close the war. So our Lieutenant could do no more than keep a vigilant eye on the foe lest he should venture to trespass on the "Neutral Ground" to burn some houses or raid some cattle. His regiment was attached to Sheldon's Brigade and I have never heard that it was employed elsewhere than in Westchester County, N. Y.

In the book of Peter Parley already mentioned you will find a full account of him and of early times in Ridgefield. After his decease his property was estimated at $40,000. Uncle John left $20,000 and was regarded as wealthy. Their store was a literal department store for the sale of every conceivable article needed by farmers.
